

SPERRY GALLIGAR Audubon

<https://commons.wikimedia.org/wiki/File:Butterfly-cocoons-green-snd.JPG>

Pupal Fortresses: Defenses Against Predation

When:

Thursday, March 26
7 pm

Where:

Pittsburg State University
Yates Hall, Room 102
1702 S Joplin St.

Public Welcome!
Free Admission

Contact:

mmcorrigan@hotmail.com

Jamie Phelps
BSU Department of Biology

Moth and butterfly pupae (cocoons and chrysalises) are immobile, preventing direct means from escaping predators. This talk will explore the many interesting and unique ways moths and butterflies have adapted to avoid predation during this vulnerable life stage.

facebook.com/SperryGalligarAudubon/